ATLANTIC CONQUERORS WELCOMED HOME

AMELIA AND FLYING COMPANIONS GIVEN GOTHAM RECEPTION

Crowds Line Streets As Bands Escort Party From Ship

NEW YORK, July 6.—Miss Amelia Earhart, the tall, slim Boston settlement worker who was the first woman to fly across the Atlantic in an airplane and her two companions on that dramatic adventure, Wilmer Stultz, pilot, and Louis Gordon, mechanic, returned today in triumph to their native country and were warmly welcomed by the City of New York.

"Welcome Amelia," was the greeting shouted from the windows of skyscrapers as the flyers were escorted by blaring bands up Broadway after they had been taken off the liner President Roosevelt which came in from Southampton, England, this morning. The blonde, brown-skinned Amelia, who bears a striking resemblance to Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh and who has been referred to as "the girl Lindy" blushed profusely time and again as she acknowledged the tribute with a wave of her hand.

An escort of several thousand police met the flyers as they landed at the Battery at 10:30 a. m. and preceded them to the City Hall where they were officially welcomed by the city.

Miss Earhart seemed bewildered by the crowds that lined lower Broadway and the interest that her arrival had created. It was, however, a rather quiet reception, as such receptions go, lacking the uproar and excitement of greetings accorded other famous flyers in the past, but it was sincere enough. For one thing the weather was damp and drizzly. Then, too, the public had become accustomed to welcoming heroes and heroines of the air.

Newspapermen bombarded Miss Earhart with questions as she came up the bay in the city's official welcome boat, the Macom. She replied freely and graciously to the questions but none of the reporters was able to obtain from her confirmation of denial of the report that she is engaged to Samuel Chapman, an electrical engineer of Boston.

"That's my private life," she remarked. Asked if she would continue to fly, she replied:

"I most certainly will. I'm too deeply entangled in aviation to leave it now."

With bands playing, Grover Whalen, silk hat and all, officially welcomed Miss Earhart and her companions as the Macom nosed against the Quarantine. Whalen was accompanied by other city dignitaries, and there were present, too, a group of friends from Boston, a reception committee from Chicago (she is a graduate of the Hyde Park High School of Chicago) and a committee of citizens from Williamsburg, Pa., the home of Stultz.

Pilot Stultz's wife and his mother, Mrs. Clara Stultz of Williamsburg, were present, as was Miss Anna Bruce, the blue-eyed, brown-haired fiancée of Gordon. The two men flyers were greeted with hugs and kisses.

It was three weeks ago, then, practically unknown, that Miss Earhart hopped off from Newfoundland in the Fokker monoplane Friendship, and flying through blinding mists, fog and rain landed in Wales. She had flown in the first seaplane that ever made a non-stop flight to Europe.

Three women had lost their lives trying to span the ocean.

PROBING DEATH OF MAN FOUND IN RIVER

SHADYSIDE, O., July 6.—Investigation into the death of an unidentified man, about 55 years old, whose body was taken from the Ohio River here late yesterday was being conducted by authorities today following the discovery that the man was not the victim of a drowning accident, but had a fractured skull, broken neck and knife wounds, leading to the theory that he had been murdered and his body thrown into the river by his slayers.

The man was fully dressed with the exception that he wore house slippers instead of shoes.

DEATH IS MYSTERY

DUNKIRK, France, July 6.—That the mysterious circumstances surrounding the death of Capt. Alfred Loewenstein, world-famous banker and financier, will probably never be known and that a verdict of "death by accident" will be handed down by officials investigating the tragedy was indicated today.

ITALIANS COMPLETE FLIGHT

GETTING CUSTOMER FOR GOVERNMENT'S FLEET HARDEST JOB

Board Pessimistic Because Of Vast Sum Necessary

WASHINGTON, July 6.—Probabilities that the government will still have its vast passenger and cargo fleet on its hands for some time to come loomed today.

Pessimism because of the "stupendous sum" believed to be necessary to swing a deal appeared to grip officials of both the shipping board and its subsidiary, the merchant fleet corporation.

Bids were invited last Tuesday after months of agitation within and without the board which eventually disrupted the membership over a policy as to whether the government should get out of the ship industry, when one by one the members who favored government ownership failed of reappointment by President Coolidge.

Now with a friendly board, ready to sell and asking for bids on both a five year and ten year operation guarantee basis, getting a customer brings to light obstacles which to many officials seem insurmountable.

No overtures have been made the department of ship sales, even of an informal nature, it was declared today, and inquiries as to "expected or probable bidders," brought doubtful nodding of the head.

"I wouldn't know who would be likely to bid," one official said. "The amount of the deal is going to be so large that selling the ships is going to be a problem."

The Leviathan, of course, is the prize of the fleet, and mention of that giant of the seas, brings the suggestion that whoever buys her will have to plan to replace her within ten years.

When Trotzky was deported from Moscow last winter he was suffering from tuberculosis, but was understood to have improved after reaching the warmer climate in Turkey. However, when summer set in the heat became so intense that Trotzky could not stand it and asked to be transferred, at least temporarily.

TRANSFER TROTZKY TO SUMMER RESORT

MOSCOW, July 6.—Leon Trotzky, exiled leader of the dwindling "opposition faction" in the Communist party, has been removed from Alma Ata to a mineral springs resort in the North Caucasus, it was learned here today. He is taking the baths in a small sanatorium but whether his health has taken a turn for the worse is not known. The Soviet officials kept secret the name of the village.

However, when summer set in the heat became so intense that Trotzky could not stand it and asked to be transferred, at least temporarily.

The proposal to revise the criminal code of the state, submitted by Judge T. H. Darby, of Cincinnati and his code revision committee, probably will be acted upon today, it was announced.

It was generally predicted that the code would be adopted, although there was some opposition yesterday to certain phases.

NEW ADMIRAL FOR BRULE RIVER CANOE FLEET

SUPERIOR, Wis., July 6.—A new admiral commands the fleet today—by presidential appointment.

FEDERAL RADIO POWER FACING TEST

WASHINGTON, July 6.—Officials today were preparing for the first major test of the much mooted powers of the Federal Radio Commission.

Faced with the necessity of reducing the existing 700 odd broadcasting stations to 550 or less, the commission announced it would refuse to continue later than August 1 the licenses of 162 stations. Those that protest this action must file their protest Monday, later be heard by the commission and if no change results, carry their case into the courts. They may take the case either to the D. C. Court of Appeals or to the U. S. Court of the district in which the station operates.

Lewis G. Caldwell, of Chicago, the new legal chief of the radio commission, was building up a staff to fight the battles of the commission.

Commission engineers point out that it is possible for but 340 stations to broadcast simultaneously in the United States without bad results from interference, but that a difference in broadcasting time schedules made it possible for more than 340 stations to hold broadcasting licenses.

HICKMAN MAY GO TO GALLOWES IN OCTOBER; APPEAL PLANNED

SAN FRANCISCO, July 6.—That William Edward Hickman's case may never be reviewed by the United States Supreme Court, is an existing possibility, according to B. Grant Taylor, clerk of the state supreme court of California.

"Such an appeal," said Taylor today, "can be taken only within the consent of the state supreme court or the permission of the United States Supreme Court."

If both courts refuse, Hickman's fate, as sealed by the state supreme court yesterday, when that body yesterday denied Hickman's appeals from the court which sentenced him, will be final.

Hickman's attorneys have announced they would appeal the case to the highest court by the land. In default of action by the court, the confessed kidnaper-slavey of Marion Parker, Los Angeles school girl, will probably mount the gallows at San Quentin Prison about the middle of October.

Apparently unperturbed by the reverse decision, Hickman, according to prison officials, slept soundly last night in his cell in "condemned row."

HOOVER STRATEGY BOARD PLANS DRIVE FOR WET EASTERN STATES

WASHINGTON, July 6.—A campaign program, by which Herbert Hoover hopes to carry the moist Atlantic seaboard states, will be determined at a series of conferences here this week and between the Republican presidential nominee and his eastern advisers, it was announced today.

The conferences will evolve a campaign strategy designed to keep New York, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island in the Republican column next November despite Al Smith's claim that Governor Al Smith will win them due to his "wetness."

The Hoover board of strategy appeared particularly hopeful of carrying New York. Smith's home ballfield.

A decision also will be reached at these conferences fixing the date for notification of Mr. Hoover at his home in Palo Alto, Calif. Once this date is determined, the itinerary of Hoover's trip to the Pacific Coast will be settled.

It appeared this morning that the date would be sometime between August 4 and August 11 with the probability that it would be one of the other, as both are Saturdays.

With the notification date fixed, the Hoover managers will arrange this trip to the Pacific coast including a stopover at Brule, Wis., for a conference with President Coolidge. One of his closest friends declared the secretary would not resign but would "ask to be relieved of his duties." This phraseology would allow the secretary to remain in the cabinet should the president desire his continued services.

There were indications Hoover would depart from Washington about July 18 and reach San Francisco about July 25 or 26.

PLAN FOR INFERIOR COURT SYSTEM GETS APPROVAL FROM BAR

Proposed Law Would Eliminate Justice Of Peace Courts

CEDAR POINT, O., July 6.—The Ohio State Bar Association at its forty-fifth annual convention today was to hear Judge Florence E. Allen of the Ohio Supreme Court speak on "Legal Ethics and Technicalities."

Judge Allen was scheduled to address the convention late this afternoon.

At Thursday's session of the convention the bar association adopted almost unanimously a report proposing establishment of an inferior court system for Ohio. The report was presented by J. A. White of Columbus, chairman of the committee, and urged enactment by the state legislature of a law providing for creation of county courts at county seats to deal with misdemeanor and minor civil cases. The measure would do away with justice of the peace and similar courts replacing them with a qualified attorney. This, it was said, would lessen congestion of cases in Common Pleas and Probate Courts.

The proposal to revise the criminal code of the state, submitted by Judge T. H. Darby, of Cincinnati and his code revision committee, probably will be acted upon today, it was announced.

It was generally predicted that the code would be adopted, although there was some opposition yesterday to certain phases.

MEETS AIR DEATH

Crossing from London, England, to Brussels, Belgium, by airplane, Captain Alfred Loewenstein, Belgian financier, above, stepped through the wrong door in the side of the plane to plunge to his death in the English Channel. Loewenstein, reported third richest man in the world, visited the U. S. in the spring, buying a plane for touring the country, and bringing his personal pilot on the trip.

Defense Counsel Says Other Murders May Be Cleared

TOLEDO, O., July 6.—Charles (Stanley) Hoppe, 26, today pleaded guilty to first degree murder in connection with the death of seven-year-old Dorothy Sielagowski, soon after court opened here today to resume the seventh day of the murder trial.

Defense witnesses were to have been heard for the first time this morning, but instead, Hoppe's attorney, Larry Bevan, entered a plea of guilty for his client, and asked for an insanity hearing. Judge Milroy is considering the application.

Hoppe was placed on trial here on June 25, in common pleas court, under an indictment of first degree murder returned by the grand jury which examined evidence presented by County Prosecutor Leroy W. Hunt to the effect that the accused man had stolen the little girl, cousin of his wife, from her bed, criminally assaulted and then strangled her, on the morning of May 29, last.

Bevan arose from his seat at the defense table, soon after court convened, and entered Hoppe's plea, as follows:

"Your honor, I wish to enter a plea of guilty to first degree murder for his defendant." Then, turning to Hoppe, Bevan said: "Do you realize, Hoppe, that in changing your plea to guilty you are throwing yourself upon the mercy of the court and that it may mean your being sentenced to the electric chair?" Hoppe weakly nodded assent.

After making the plea of guilty, Bevan moved the court permit an examination into Hoppe's sanity.

The agreement to enter the guilty plea was made July 4, in a conference attended by Hoppe, his wife, and defense attorneys.

Bevan said today that following the conference with Hoppe he believed it would be possible to solve many equally important murders, similar to that of the Sielagowski girl, in and around Toledo in the last few years and that the solution of these would strengthen his claim that Hoppe was insane.

Bevan appeared before Judge Milroy here yesterday and admitted that his plea of sickness in order to obtain a continuance of the trial made yesterday morning was a "hoax."

"Give me but a few hours more," the attorney requested of the court, "and I think I can end this case." Bevan then outlined all of his findings with regard to Hoppe.

At the conclusion of Bevan's argument, Judge Milroy observed that he considered the case "too big for any one man to handle," and summoned Common Pleas Judge James Martin, and Judge James Austin, also of common pleas court, branch of domestic relations to confer with him regarding the case.

Bevan moved the court permit an examination into Hoppe's sanity.

HEADS STANDARD

CLEVELAND, July 6.—A. J. Mills, head of the Ohio Standard Oil Co.'s sales department for five years and more recently a vice president, has been elected president of the company succeeding W. H. Foster, resigned, the board of directors announced today.

Foster served with the company fifty-one years.

SMUGGLING UNDER FIRE

Rail Officials Called To Conference To Halt Canadian Bootlegging.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—Officials of railroads operating between United States and Canada have been called for a conference on July 18 with Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Seymour Lowman for a checkup on steps to prevent smuggling between the two countries.

In announcing the conference today Lowman explained that about a month ago, the entire situation had been laid before the rail executives and customs officers at Buffalo, where an agreement was reached to take drastic action against smugglers.

Because of the dictate of the treasury department for additional regulatory activities in connection with freight and express traffic, it was decided at that time to give the railroads an opportunity to work out an anti-smuggling campaign.

Advices to Lowman indicate that such a plan has been devised by the railroad people and that it will be presented at the conference. It is probable that a group of Canadian and American customs officials will sit in.

BREAK RECORDS FOR DISTANCE IN ROME-BRAZILIAN FLIGHT

Made Night Landing After 4,600 Mile Ocean Trip

RIO DE JANEIRO, July 6.—After being reported "lost" for hours, word was received here today that the record breaking Italian aviators, Capt. Arturo Ferrarin and Major Carlo Del Prete landed at Touros, on the Brazilian coast, near Capsoa Roque, at 10:10 o'clock last night, (Brazilian time). Governor Lamerline, of the state of Rio Grande Del Norte, telegraphed that the flyers were safe and had spent the night at Touros.

Owing to the inability of radio stations to get in touch with the airmen, it had been assumed at first that they spent hours flying over the coast in storm and fog before landing.

Ferrarin and Del Prete in completing their 4,600 mile flight from Rome, set an aviation distance record. After a rest they hopped off again for Rio De Janeiro, about 1,200 miles distant, allowing for coast line detours.

Radio stations on the northeastern coast tried to get into wireless communication with the airmen, but failed. Finally word came through from Touros that the Italian plane "had been picked up."

This left it in doubt as to whether radio communication was established or whether the plane had come down. Following the long hours of suspense there was much rejoicing here over the news that the daring airmen had at last been found.

After hopping off at Genipabu Beach, ten miles north of Natal last night the aviators did not fly at once in the direction of Rio. In fact, there was some doubt as to their intentions. The Italians said they were going to look for a better landing field and turned northward.

Governor Lamerline, who was attempting to keep in touch with the course of the flight, sent word to Rio at 3:50 a. m. (Brazilian time) that he had not received any word from the Italian plane since it hopped off at Genipabu Beach.

T. R.'S OTHER HALF

Mrs. Roosevelt Seen As Balance Wheel For Teddy Who Lacked Sense Of Humor.

Theodore Roosevelt and Inset, Mrs. Edith Kermit Roosevelt

(This is the fourth of a series of presidential personalities by Ida McGlone Gibson, nationally-known feature writer.)

By IDA M'GLONE GIBSON
Specially Written for Central Press and The Gazette

President Roosevelt and Judge Ben Lindsay, of the Denver juvenile court, were very great friends, and when, after the row with William Howard Taft, Roosevelt broke with the Republicans and formed the "Bull Moose" party, the physically small judge, with the big courage, was one of his staunchest adherents.

Contrary to her usual custom, Mrs. Roosevelt came to Chicago with "T. R." as he was then beginning to be called, for the Moose convention. During her stay, she gave a tea to the newspaper women at her rooms in the Congress hotel.

T. R.'s Humor

Roosevelt had very little sense of humor. The subtleties of sarcasm were not for him, and to make him enjoy a good laugh, one had to strike out with a sledge hammer blow.

On the contrary, Mrs. Roosevelt, like all sensitive women, was one of the witliest persons I ever have met. Since she had asked me to come to her rooms a little early, and introduce the newspaper girls to her, I arrived a half hour before the tea was scheduled.

Suddenly we heard a big resounding laugh in the hallway, and the colonel burst into the room—so full of what he was going to say that he did not notice that anyone else was there.

"Edith, Edith," he called, before he had fairly opened the door, "do you know what they are calling our dear Ben Lindsay?"

Mrs. Roosevelt said nothing, but her face mirrored her interest. Again his big laugh filled the room. When he recovered himself somewhat, he said: "They are calling him the 'Bull Mouse'."

Mrs. Roosevelt looked thoroughly worried. "Aren't you afraid if the judge hears that it will distress him?" she inquired, softly.

"I never thought of that," answered her husband, looking as abashed as a boy caught with a much-prized pot of jam in his hands.

Then he saw me and sobered instantly. Later, at the tea, when the other newspaper women arrived, he gave me the impression that he had on his company manners.

Many times afterwards I was made aware that Theodore Roosevelt's wife, in her unassuming way, was his great balance wheel.

SWIMMER IS SHOT

COLUMBUS, O., July 6.—William Francis, 14, was in Grant hospital here today where surgeons probed for a bullet and removed it from his groin and Robert Carpenter, 17, was being held in the county jail pending investigation of the shooting of Francis who was said to have received his wound when Carpenter, standing on the bank of Spring Lake near here with a .22 calibre rifle, attempted to see how near he could come to grazing swimmers in the lake without actually hitting them.

Carpenter denied the shooting, claiming mistaken identity.

BOOKS ON VACATION PREVENT DULL DAYS LIBRARIAN STATES

"More and more summer vacationists demand books, and yet many vacations are spent far from any source of supply. Those of you who go camping for instance, know that there are times when fishing, canoeing and other sports fail in their appeal and a good book would make all the difference," Miss Mildred Sandoe, county librarian says.

"And what is a sea trip without a book?"

"The solution?"

"Your library."

"Vacationists are privileged characters. According to library rules vacationists may take with them six books to be kept for four weeks if so desired. Furthermore, if you are going away and do not care to carry the books, your address plus postage will insure a supply of books being sent to you by mail. These are changeable at any time as any books you like can be sent to you upon your returning the original set.

"Don't forget your library will do its best to make your vacation a happy one. All it needs is your address."

HARNESS CIGARS TIE FIREMEN BY BEATING DOWNTOWN CLUB

The Harness Cigars softball team was resting Friday on the fruits of its fourth victory by a one-run margin this season.

Scoring one run in the last half of the ninth inning to eke out a 5 to 4 victory over the Downtown Country Club in a National League game at Cox Memorial Athletic Field Thursday night. Harness broke a deadlock for second place only to step into another tie with the Firemen for first place.

Harness had previously defeated the Country Club team several weeks ago 10 to 9 through the medium of a ninth inning rally.

The winners, however, sprang two rallies Thursday to accomplish victory, scoring twice in the eighth to tie the score and then winning out in the ninth.

Paul Boxwell, Harness pitcher, besides hurling a steady game in the pinches, won his own game by scoring the winning run in the ninth.

BURGLAR, HURT, GETS REVENGE

TOLEDO, O., July 6.—There may be "honor among thieves" but when it comes to police court judges, burglars just naturally let their impulses run rampant—at least, that is the impression police Judge Homer Ramey is due to receive when he returns from a pleasant (thus far) vacation away from the onerous duties of the bench.

An open window, at the judge's residence here, showing unmistakable signs of having been "jimmied", aroused suspicions of an observant mailman and the investigation disclosed that the home had been entered and ransacked in a leisurely manner, many articles of value having been carried off.

Officers investigating the burglary, opined that it was the result of resentment engendered in the breast of a burglar whose sensitive feelings his honor may have inadvertently wounded.

Sportistory

Friday, July 6
Babe Ruth hit his fourteenth homer, 1922; and his twenty-second, 1924.

The Vectors and Elletts played a thirty-six-inning baseball game, four times the usual length of a game, at Columbus, 1907.

The Yankees scored fourteen runs against Washington in the fifth inning of a game, 1920.

Fleming Roy trotted the fastest third heat for a green trotter, at Peoria, Ill., 1908. Time, 2:07 1/4.

N. Petersen, of Denmark, set a new world's record for the 25,000-meter walk, 1919. Time, 2 hours, 7 minutes, 10.3 seconds.

Player Flick of Cleveland hit three triples in a game, 1902.

G. Rasmussen of Denmark set a new world's record for the 5,000-meter walk 1918. Time, twenty-one minutes 59 8/10 seconds.

J. Bouin of France set a world's record for the fifteen-kilometer run, 1913. Time, forty-seven minutes 18.6 seconds.

LINK CHICAGO WITH MURDER OF GUNMAN

NEW YORK, July 6.—Chicago gunmen were definitely linked to day with the murder of Frankie Yale.

The murder car, abandoned a few hours after the Brooklyn gangster king was riddled with machine gun bullets, was in Chicago about a week ago, police learned.

They learned too, that the man who bought the automobile in Tennessee was in Chicago at the same time and that he was seen in New York with the car last Sunday, the day Yale met his death.

Hope Dwindles for Great Explorer

Grave fears are felt that Roald Amundsen, inset, noted explorer, will never be seen alive again. No word has come from the French plane, top, and its crew, lower right, since they hopped off at Tromsø, Norway, many days ago in search of the "Italia" and her crew. Commandant Guilbaud, second from left, who was in command of the big Farnum, is one of the best aviators in France.

Senator Charles Curtis, left, of Kansas, running mate of Herbert Hoover, both unanimously nominated at Kansas City, has the farm interests thoroughly at heart. His nomination was seconded by his daughter, Mrs. Webster Knight, of Providence, R. I., who, in her capacity of delegate from "Little Rhody" of course voted for the "dad." ## Case for Solomon

Here's a new type of kidnapping story, revealed by the arrest of Mrs. Charles Ingram, above, of Los Angeles, Cal., on a child-stealing charge. Mrs. Ingram's adopted baby died recently and to assuage her grief, Mrs. Robert Grable allowed her to take her young son, Bobby, below. Mrs. Ingram claims that the baby was a permanent gift, but Mrs. Grable insists that he was merely an overnight loan. The courts are to decide the case.

She plans to keep her job and "just go along" as usual.

FROM OUT OF THE PAST OF SENATOR JOE ROBINSON

PLEADS FOR BOOKS FOR SAILORS

Because Dorothy Wister, daughter of Owen Wister, the novelist, believes sailors desire to read but haven't enough books, she recently flew over Philadelphia, distributing folders urging people to contribute books of all kinds to the American Merchant Marine Library Association so that the gobs can while away lonely hours at sea reading.

Creamed Comments On S.S. Lesson

Saul, a leader in the persecution of Christians was proceeding to extend his destructive program by bringing to death the Christians in Damascus forty miles from Jerusalem; while making this long journey, the quiet of the way with the stirring of a conscience within made possible a new experience portrayed in this lesson.

Vs. 6, 7. "As I drew nigh unto Damascus, about noon, suddenly there shone from heaven a great light round about me. And I fell to the ground and heard a voice saying unto me, 'Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me?' One that has seen a great sinner is likely to have a spectacular conversion—a great sinner will find a great salvation with likely demonstrations. The voice of God first called attention to his sin—the persecution of his followers which was his persecution.

Vs. 8. "And I answered, who art Thou, Lord? And he said unto me, I am Jesus of Nazareth whom Thou persecutest." The one who really seeks to know the Lord will find Him.

Vs. 9. "And I said, what shall I do, Lord? And the Lord said unto me, arise and go into Damascus; and there it shall be told thee of all things which are appointed thee to do." Paul's restless energies were being reversed and were eager to flow in the channel of service for Jesus; not another word about persecution, but words of mercy giving light for the next step to be taken.

Vs. 10. "And when I could not see for the glory of the light, being led by the hand of them that were with me, I came unto Damascus." Paul immediately obeyed his newly found Lord, threw his will into the current of his Master's will and turned his faith unto faithfulness. There was much that he did not know; he could not see, he was being led in the dark; but one thing he did know—Jesus was his Lord forever.

Vs. 12, 13. "And one Ananias, a devout man came unto me and said, Brother Saul, receive thy sight. And in that very hour I looked up on him." The work of God must be done through human agencies co-operating with the Lord, so Ananias was called to represent God in doing the necessary personal work. Personal evangelism is the Bible way.

Vs. 14. "And he said, the God of our fathers has appointed thee to know His will, and to see the Righteous One, and to hear a voice from his mouth." To know God's will is an essential appointment for every man; it takes an effort on the part of man to know God's will. In that effort divine encouragement is given as one sees and hears the Lord.

Vs. 16. "And why tarriest thou? Arise and be baptized, and wash away thy sins, calling on his name." Full obedience was to be seen in moving on as directed by God and in the rite of baptism, the seal of his conversion.

Discussion on Questions S.S. Lesson

1. What does the term, "conversion" mean?
2. What are the steps that lead to conversion?
3. How does the Lord lead out of uncertainty into clear convictions?
4. What are some of the things we are "appointed" to do in the world?

5. What are the different types of conversion in experiences as taught in the Bible?
6. Why were there special companions in Paul's conversion?

Clericus says, "Each of us may have a vision of Christ which is just as real, just as powerful, just as beautiful and blessed as that which Saul saw on the Damascus road. There may not accompany it such startling scenes, yet we may be as certain of having seen Him and determine to know Him and follow Him."

Lesson Prayer. "O Lord, how we have persecuted. These unawares! How generously Thou hast stood in the way we have proceeded, ready to reveal Thyself at every possible occasion! We praise Thee for speaking to us and furnishing us the needed light that makes clear the right way; help us to walk in the way that leads to God all the days of our life."

BOOK REVIEW

"Current Thinking" by Smith, The University of Chicago Press, presents the modern forms of Christian belief and points out their relation to the whole progress of Christian thinking.

"Making the House a Home" by Guest, The Reilly and Lee Co. Chicago, is a portrayal of the building of a home suggestive of help for any home builders.

Church Forum

1. WHAT ARE THE ADVANTAGES OF THE LECTURE METHOD IN TEACHING A SUNDAY SCHOOL CLASS?
The lecture method is especially adapted to teaching of adult Bible classes. More can be reached by this teaching method; more truth can be presented than is possible by other methods in a short space of time; few teachers can ask questions and lead worthwhile discussions properly; the lecture method calls out the best in the teacher and often he is developed into a commanding speaker; the lecture method makes it easy for the timid to attend the class sessions and at the same time he helped; it allows the building up of large classes; the large Bible classes fostered and maintained by successful teachers with the lecture method often develop into mighty forces in social, civic, reform and religious movements.

2. WHAT ARE SOME OF THE DISADVANTAGES OF THE LECTURE METHOD?
This method is not so feasible for small classes of adults and children and young people; it encourages laziness on the part of the pupils who do not need to study, as the teacher does all the studying; the method may smother that self expression of the class which makes for the moral life and strength of the class; there is a great danger that the members of a class taught by the lecture method are so much like the preaching service, there is no need to attend the public service of worship; there is a tendency to build the class around the teacher who trust everybody, but thyself more.

World Religious News

The Community Church idea is growing. In 1922 there were 331 community churches, in 1927 there were 1296. Of this number 441 are denominational, 378 non-denominational and 476 federated.

It is predicted that between three and four thousand delegates from the southern states will attend the Baptist World Congress this summer at Toronto and about three thousand from the northern section. The tercentenary of John Bunyan will be observed.

At the end of the first century there were five million Christians at the end of the tenth century 10,000,000. At the end of the fifteenth century, 100,000,000 and at the end of the nineteenth century 500,000,000. There are now about 600,000,000 Christians in the world.

Mr. Arthur Gook, leader of the Friends Mission in Iceland itineraries among the remote farms of the island, preaching the gospel. He has recently been able to construct a radio center with masts 114 feet high at the top of a steep hill. Three or four receiving stations have already been provided for by donors. This will present the gospel each week to many who otherwise have no opportunity of hearing it.

Home Education

APPRECIATION VERSUS CRITICISM

A mother recently called on her pastor; she had a broken heart, giving as her reason that she had been justly rebuked by her little girl.

"You know," she said to her pastor, "how often she says and does things that irritate me and how often I have to rebuke her, and I have not been slow in my criticisms, but I noticed that today she had not done a thing to irritate me."

"When I tucked her in bed and gave her a goodnight kiss and had started downstairs, I was surprised to hear her sobbing. Turning back, I found her little head buried in the pillow and her body shaking with crying. When I asked her why she cried, she answered between her sobs, 'Haven't I been a good girl today?'"

"That question," said the mother, "went through my heart like a knife. I had been quick enough to correct her when she had done all the things that were wrong, but when all day long she had tried to conduct herself so that she would not do a thing that irritated me, I had put her to bed without speaking a word of appreciation."

Many others besides that mother get far behind in their words of kindness. The child is even more sensitive than the adult; many a child's character is made or unmade by attention and appreciation or by ignoring and criticisms.—D. Carl Yoder.

The Church Invites You

THE VALUE OF RELIGIOUS MOTIVES

Roger Babson says, "The prosperity of our country depends upon the motives and purposes of our people. These motives and purposes are directed only in the right course through religion. In spite of their imperfections, this is why I believe in our churches, and why I am a great optimist on their future."

The need of the hour is not more factories or materials, not more railroads or steamships, not more armies or navies, but rather more education based on the plain teachings of Jesus.

We as men and women are given capacities to learn with possibilities of progress. Right motives and purposes. Why not accept the invitation and COME TO CHURCH NEXT SUNDAY?—D. Carl Yoder.

THE BETTER WAY
WORLD PEACE
Congressman Theo. Burton says, "The one object to which we should all bend our efforts is a system of law governing nations as we now have a system of law governing individuals. Our Supreme Court has settled 100 disputes between states."
"Why can't we have a similar court to settle disputes between nations? The strong nation and the weak nation all equal in their rights before our common court."
"Our nation is taking a leading part in the work of peace, not so much in declarations as in practical steps. We sponsored the disarmament conference; we suggested the Doves Commission, and we have taken the lead in disarmament sessions."
"If commissions of inquiry had been agreed to by the European nations, we would never have had the World War. Still a more ambitious plan is sponsored by our secretary of state and sustained by the administration for the absolute outlawry of war. Treaties to that effect will go far to promote lasting peace."

PLEASE!

Although repeatedly urged to bring their church notices in on time, ministers continue to be tardy in this matter. THE GAZETTE prints these notices as a favor to the ministers and as a convenience to their parishioners. The only condition imposed is that the notices be in THE GAZETTE office not later than 5 p. m. Thursday of each week. This week there were only two or three notices in before 6 p. m. Thursday and by 10 Friday morning half of the notices had not arrived. The situation frequently results in delay and confusion in the composition room. Unless this condition is remedied it will be necessary to leave out all notices not received within the proper time.

ANOTHER MARATHON DANCE IS HALTED

PITTSBURGH, July 6.—"The world's championship dance-to-a-finish" marathon which has been going on for more than three weeks at Duquesne Gardens here, came to an abrupt today by order of the law, and seven couples are wearing the crown of the world's championship.

The marathon came to a close following an announcement made by Dr. D. E. Sable, chief surgeon of the department of public safety who has been in constant attendance upon the dancers since they started their harrowing grind, that he would not be responsible for the condition of the law, and seven couples are wearing the crown of the world's championship.

The three prizes which totalled $3,500 were to be divided between the fourteen contestants. This averages $250 for each dancer or a little less than 61 cents per hour for their 533 hours grind.

Girl Offers Her Body To Find Radium Cure

But Mme. Curie, Noted French Scientist, Says There Is No Hope

By GRAHAM STEWART

International Illustrated News Staff Correspondent

WHEN pretty Katherine Schaub, of No. 123 South Seventh Street, Newark, N. J., offered her living body to scientists in the hope of discovering a cure for the dread radium poisoning, she pre-empted a niche in the medical fraternity's hall of fame especially reserved for those who give their lives in humanity's cause.

One of five young women who are slowly disintegrating from the radium poisoning, Miss Schaub had read the appeal of Dr. Alexander O. Gettler, noted toxicologist, for one of these "living dead" to allow certain experiments to be made while she was yet alive. Only thus was there a chance that other sufferers might be saved.

So Miss Schaub wrote: "My only request is that I be permitted to live out in the sunshine during the experiments. Hospitals are so depressing; there is so much suggestion of sickness and death. Of course, I should want the assurance of physicians that the routine would be conducted in such fashion as not unnecessarily to cut short my life. And if exigencies of the case will admit I should like to visit the famous shrine of St. Anne's in Quebec before I die."

But the sublime courage which prompted Miss Schaub's proffer will be its own reward, for Mme. Curie, noted French scientist, who, with her husband, Pierre, discovered radium in the uranium mineral pitchblende in 1898, has stated that there is no cure for one who has taken the poison into his system. There can be only one result—a lingering, disintegrating death.

The girl who offers her own life in order that other sufferers may have a chance for theirs, was an instructress in a radium dial-painting plant in New Jersey. There the girls were told to "point" their brushes with their lips in order to save the precious radium. Little by little they took in the deadly poison, which manifested itself months, in some cases years, later. Now the five girls with most advanced cases of poisoning are seeking to recover $1,250,000 damages, although it is admitted that the statute of limitation has expired.

The cases are set for trial the latter part of June.

RESTLESS LOVE

© By Samuel Merwin 1928
RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

READ THIS FIRST:

Ackland Center, a little old town in New England, is proud of its beauty and traditions. But the modern world crowds in on its peace and quiet. Finally a notorious roadhouse, Jazzland, is opened by a gang of bootleggers. Liquor flows. Girls of the town are lured there. The editor of the "Weekly Age" is murdered for his editorial attacks. His brother, Homer Pew, takes up the fight. Homer is joined by Stella Bagot, one of the home-town girls, who has made good as a writer in New York. Stella comes to write a story, and remains to fight Jazzland. Homer is beaten up in a mysterious midnight attack. Stella takes charge of the paper and writes sizzling editorials. She also tries to trace a telephone call, believing it to come from the murderer. Stella finds her little sister, Martha, has been out on a lark to Jazzland, and has been drinking. She gives her lecture and Martha complains that she is kept at home while Stella has been allowed to go to college and later take up her own life in New York. Stella retires to her room, and leaves a note pinned on her door telling her mother to awaken her early the next morning.

Stella has made an appointment to phone Ernie Hallam, a New York admirer, who is staying in Boston.

Ernie complains that Stella has forgotten him, but she makes a date to meet him in a little town nearby that night at six-thirty. Ernie is very much in love with Stella.

Stella finds out Joe Harmer, Ackland's leading citizen and political boss, has had a hand in leasing Jazzland to the gang.

Stella convinces Homer to keep quiet about Joe Harmer until they can get more evidence.

Stella tells Homer about her sister Martha's escapades. Stella is beginning to fall in love with Homer, the fighting young editor.

Homer is notified that the bank, of which Joe Harmer is the head, has called his loans.

Stella and Ernie visit Jazzland, and to get evidence Stella persuades Ernie to buy a bottle of liquor.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXVI

Shortly the Greek returned and laid on the table a flat parcel wrapped in a bit of newspaper. "Four dollars, please," he said.

Stella peeped within the paper. "It's a pint of Scotch, Ernie. My word, but they charge enough!"

The thought came that he despised her small evasions. Probably he'd talk out before long. He'd never before been slow about expressing his thoughts. Was he waiting for her? She couldn't speak to the point. Certainly not until that pounding in her temples eased down. His grim self-control made her feel a fluttering feminine thing. Confusing mental pictures kept rising of Homer lying white and inert on a sofa while the doctor worked on his head. In that peaceful Colonial room, with the ceiling-high tiers of books and the huge globe and the dictionary on its wire stand and Kitty Pew standing breathless in a window above and the crushed Aunt Emma twisting her hands.

Soberly, more than ever like a sister couple, they finished their dinner. Then they smoked. And still the somber eyes were on her. So she suggested dancing again. The evening wore on. The crowd grew. The floor was crowded now. And the liquor was telling. She saw a middle-aged man, with gray strands in his hair, kissing his partner as they danced. The girl couldn't have been twenty. A hum of singing rose from the floor. A girl broke into hysterical laughter, and her escort led her out to the parking area.

They sat again at their table. Stella glanced at her watch. It was a little after ten. His eyes were on her. She stirred uncomfortably. "Ernie," she remarked, struggling to appear casual, "I must be going. I've got a lot to do."

"All right," said he, with a snap of decision in his voice. "We'll go. In that curious, silent manner, they walked out to the car. She carried the whisky bottle, still wrapped in its bit of newspaper. She was aware of couples in the dim cars under the pines; a face here and there, and white arms. She thought of Ham Pew and what he had died for.

They drove out of the yard, still without a word. Hallam turned west.

"This is the wrong turn, Ernie," she said. "We go the other way."

"He deliberately speeded up the car."

She sank back in the seat. Now she sensed, back of the set face, blazing purpose. It was difficult. Doubtless she hadn't been fair with him. She felt tired. And more than a little afraid.

"Ernie is this... fair?"

"Ernie, is this... fair?"

"Fair?" He bent a quick look on her. "It's a great time to be saying that. Are you really laboring under the impression that you've been fair?"

"It's pretty difficult, Ernie... what I've been going through. I'm carrying quite a burden."

"This didn't interest him. 'I'm afraid I'm pretty tired.' Nor this. 'I tell you, I must get home.'"

"Why?"

She had no ready answer for that. The car sped on and on. They were half way to Worcester when he spoke again. "You're not going home tonight, Stella."

She caught her breath. The easiest course, in her bewilderment, would have been to break down and cry; but she wouldn't do that. She didn't know how to meet the strength of the man. But something she must do. Being a woman, she felt back again on evasion.

"But, Ernie, you're not unreasonable. I can't just dash off like this. I haven't so much as a hand bag."

"What on earth has that got to do with it? Neither have I."

Worcester lay far behind. The state road wound over and through the hills toward Springfield. Shadowy wages flashed by in blurred succession. She clung to the side of the car. He was driving pretty fast; fifty and sixty miles an hour.

"Ernie, you're putting me into a situation that's going to be pretty hard to explain."

He didn't reply.

"Won't you tell me what you're planning. After all—"

"Not here," said he. "I don't propose to tell you anything here."

"You're taking a good deal for granted."

"Possibly. But I have no choice."

"No choice?"

"It's a showdown, Stella. The man was more than strong, he was bitter. 'We're going to talk it out. But not up here.'"

"You won't tell me where we're going?"

"Certainly. To New York. We'll be there before morning. You can get some sleep. Then we'll talk. Settle it."

"But I can't go to New York!"

"Yes you can! Oh, I'm going to treat you well enough, Stella. Better than you deserve. But first I'm going to get you out of that damned Victorian atmosphere. See if I can bring you to your senses. If I can't, all right. We'll just break. But I'm going to find out, once and for all. One thing is certain, if, after all, you turn out to be just another

NEW YORK, July 6.—A professional moviegoer's week: Sunday—Clara Bow fans who go to "Ladies of the Mob" expecting Clara to do her usual flapping will be disappointed, will those who go to see the picture, hoping some of the amatic possibilities of this story by a life prisoner are realized. The story, as Ernest Booth wrote it, was not fiction, a series of incidents illustrating the wretchedness of women who love outlaws. As film fodder it demanded, if anything, realistic treatment. It wasn't material for Clara Bow. Monday—To the opening of the grand Shaw moviehouse debut and forces Del Rio's "The Red Rover," with AE, the Irish poet, best Boyd, the Irish critic, and Charles MacArthur, the playwright. Tuesday—It was real pleasure to end an afternoon with three green men, Gary Cooper, Lane Chandler and Leslie Fenton. New York for the first time, the ing helplessly to Fenton, the "knopite" Gary got a "klick" of being recognized as "that tier who played in 'Legion of the Damned'" (spoken in a loud whisper) when he went into a shop buy cravats. Lane, who used to guide in Yellowstone park, cures he's among the luckiest en in the world to be a screen ar. Fenton prefers the stage to a screen, but finds it easier to make a living on the latter, he ys. He was Clyde Griffith in the age version of "An American Tragedy."

Wednesday—The "Station Master," a Soviet (Russian Station Master film company) production of the Pushkin novel, is proof that the Russians can (and do!) turn out some feeble film stuff, too. No propaganda in this, or anything else. Thursday—Having seen "The Don and the Mouse," I take back all the mean things I've said about Varner Brothers and their Vitaphone. The story remains the same, it was on the stage; but the fast is perfect and the talking scenes remarkable. It is easy to see that when the producers get round to creating some original material designed especially for the medium, instead of grabbing stage antiques, they're going to

GLIMPSES OF OHIO HISTORY

The Villages of The Mequachakes

LONG BEFORE the authorized expeditions of such honored scouts as Christopher Gist, traders of more or less questionable character and purpose had penetrated the country north of the Ohio River to drive shrewd bargains with the Indians. The mighty Shawnees were among the tribes who were driven westward by the progress of the palefaces, and had taken up their abode in the seclusion of the Mad River Valley.

Among their important divisions were the Mequachakes, who established their villages at the headwaters of the Mad River; and these villages became the centers of English trade that naturally followed the trails of these early traders, who were mostly Scotch-Irish.

The Mequachakes Villages were destroyed in the conflicts with U. S. troops in 1791. These same trails have become splendid highways in and out of Bellefontaine and other thriving towns of Logan County, dotted with the friendly Red and White emblem of Smiling Loreco Service.

SCOTCH-IRISH traders, reckless, venturesome, and mayhap of loose morals, ventured into the wilderness at the headwaters of the Mad River and traded with the Mequachakes where now stands the city of Bellefontaine.

VEEDOL Motor Oils and Greases, nationally advertised and famous for the "Film of

AMELIA AND FLYING COMPANIONS GIVEN GOTHAM RECEPTION

Crowds Line Streets As Bands Escort Party From Ship

NEW YORK, July 6.—Miss Amelia Earhart, the tall, slim Boston settlement worker who was the first woman to fly across the Atlantic in an airplane and her two companions on that dramatic adventure, Wilmer Stultz, pilot, and Louis Gordon, mechanic, returned today in triumph to their native country and were warmly welcomed by the City of New York.

"Welcome Amelia," was the greeting shouted from the windows of skyscrapers as the flyers were escorted by blaring bands up Broadway after they had been taken off the liner President Roosevelt which came in from Southampton, England, this morning. The blonde, brown-skinned Amelia, who bears a striking resemblance to Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh and who has been referred to as "the girl Lindy" blushed profusely time and again as she acknowledged the tribute with a wave of her hand.

An escort of several thousand police met the flyers as they landed at the Battery at 10:30 a. m. and preceded them to the City Hall where they were officially welcomed by the city.

Miss Earhart seemed bewildered by the crowds that lined lower Broadway and the interest that her arrival had created. It was, however, a rather quiet reception, as such receptions go, lacking the uproar and excitement of greetings accorded other famous flyers in the past, but it was sincere enough. For one thing the weather was damp and drizzly. Then, too, the public had become accustomed to welcoming heroes and heroines of the air.

Newspapermen bombarded Miss Earhart with questions as she came up the bay in the city's official welcome boat, the Macom. She replied freely and graciously to the questions but none of the reporters was able to obtain from her confirmation or denial of the report that she is engaged to Samuel Chapman, an electrical engineer of Boston.

"That's my private life," she remarked. Asked if she would continue to fly, she replied:

"I most certainly will. I'm too deeply entangled in aviation to leave it now."

With bands playing, Grover Whalen, silk hat and all, officially welcomed Miss Earhart and her companions as the Macom nosed against the liner President Roosevelt at Quamby. Whalen was accompanied by other city dignitaries, and there were present, too, a group of friends from Boston, a reception committee from Chicago (she is a graduate of the Hyde Park High School of Chicago) and a committee of citizens from Williamsburg, Pa., the home of Stultz.

Pilot Stultz's wife and his mother, Mrs. Clara Stultz of Williamsburg, were present, as was Miss Anna Bruce, the blue-eyed, brown-haired fiancée of Gordon. The two men flyers were greeted with hugs and kisses.

It was three weeks ago, then, practically unknown, that Miss Earhart hopped off from New England in the Fokker monoplane Friendship, and flying through blinding mists, fog and rain landed in Wales. She had flown in the first airplane that ever made a non-stop flight to Europe.

Three women had lost their lives trying to span the ocean.

PROBING DEATH OF MAN FOUND IN RIVER

SHADYSIDE, O., July 6.—Investigation into the death of an unidentified man, about 55 years old, whose body was taken from the Ohio River here late yesterday was being conducted by authorities today following the discovery that the man was not the victim of a drowning accident, but had a fractured skull, broken neck and knife wounds, leading to the theory that he had been murdered and his body thrown into the river by his slayers.

The man was fully dressed with the exception that he wore house slippers instead of shoes.

DEATH IS MYSTERY

DUNKIRK, France, July 6.—That the mysterious circumstances surrounding the death of Capt. Alfred Loewenstein, world-famous banker and financier, will probably never be known and that a verdict of "death by accident" will be handed down by officials investigating the tragedy was indicated today.

GETTING CUSTOMER FOR GOVERNMENT'S FLEET HARDEST JOB

Board Pessimistic Because Of Vast Sum Necessary

WASHINGTON, July 6.—Probability that the government will still have its vast passenger and cargo fleet on its hands for some time to come loomed today.

Pessimism because of the "stupendous sum" believed to be necessary to swing a deal appeared to grip officials of both the shipping board and its subsidiary, the merchant fleet corporation.

Bids were invited last Tuesday after months of agitation within and without the board which eventually disrupted the membership.

That the grand jury would be necessary to get out of the ship industry, when one by one the members who favored government ownership failed of re-appointment by President Coolidge.

Now with a friendly board, ready to sell and asking for bids on both a five year and ten year operation guarantee basis, getting a customer or bringing to light obstacles which many officials seem insurmountable.

No overtures have been made the department of ship sales, even of an informal nature, it was declared today, and inquiries as to "expected or probable bidders," brought doubtful nodding of the head.

"I wouldn't know who would be likely to bid," one official said. "The amount of money necessary to swing the deal is going to be so large that selling the ships is going to be a problem."

The Leviathan, of course, is the prize of the fleet, and mention of that giant of the seas, brings the suggestion that whoever buys her will have to plan to replace her within ten years.

TRANSFER TROTZKY TO SUMMER RESORT

MOSCOW, July 6.—Leon Trotsky, exiled leader of the dwindling "opposition faction" in the Communist party, has been removed from Alma Ata to a mineral springs resort in the North Caucasus. It was learned here today. He is taking the baths in a small sanitarium but whether his health has taken a turn for the worse is not known. The Soviet officials kept secret the name of the village.

When Trotsky was deported from Moscow last winter he was suffering from tuberculosis, but was understood to have improved after reaching the warmer climate in Turkestan. However, when summer set in the heat became so intense that Trotsky could not stand it and asked to be transferred, at least temporarily.

NEW ADMIRAL FOR BRULE RIVER CANOE FLEET

SUPERIOR, Wis., July 6.—A new admiral commands the fleet today—by presidential appointment.

Not the American battle fleet however. Rather, the twenty-odd canoes that fill the boat house at Cedar Island Lodge, summer camp of President and Mrs. Coolidge.

Chief Petty Officer Howard Johnson of the U. S. S. Mayflower, is the man so signally honored. Johnson is chief electrician of the presidential

FEDERAL RADIO POWER FACING TEST

WASHINGTON, July 6.—Officials today were preparing for the first major test of the much mooted powers of the Federal Radio Commission.

Faced with the necessity of reducing the existing 700 odd broadcasting stations to 550 or less, the commission announced it would refuse to continue later than August 1 the licenses of 162 stations. Those that protest this action must file their protest Monday, later be heard by the commission, and if no change results, carry their case into the courts. They may take the case either to the D. C. Court of Appeals or to the U. S. Court of the district in which the station operates.

Lewis G. Caldwell, of Chicago, the new legal chief of the radio commission, was building up a staff to fight the battles of the commission.

Commission engineers point out that it is possible for but 340 stations in the United States without bad results from interference, but that a difference in broadcasting time schedules made it possible for more than 340 stations to hold broadcasting licenses.

A number of smaller stations ordered to discontinue broadcasting by August 1 have consolidated with larger plants.

Of the stations expected to file appeals the most prominent are WEVD and WGL, both in New York city. The first is the Eugene Debs Memorial Station, the second being operated by the International Broadcasting Co. Both of these will bring an array of legal talent before the commission to contend that discontinuance of their broadcasting licenses is not "contingent" to the better interests of radio in the United States.

HICKMAN MAY GO TO GALLOWS IN OCTOBER; APPEAL PLANNED

SAN FRANCISCO, July 6.—That

William Edward Hickman's case may never be reviewed by the United States Supreme Court, is an existing possibility, according to B. Grant Taylor, clerk of the state supreme court of California.

"Such an appeal," said Taylor today, "can be taken only within the consent of the state supreme court or the permission of the United States Supreme Court."

If both courts refuse, Hickman's fate, as sealed by the state supreme court yesterday, when that body yesterday denied Hickman's appeals from the court which sentenced him, will be final.

Hickman's attorneys have announced they would appeal the case to the highest court in the land. In default of action by that court, the confessed kidnaper-slayer of Marion Parker, Los Angeles school girl, will probably mount the gallows at San Quentin Prison about the middle of October.

Apparently unperturbed by the reverse decision, Hickman, according to prison officials, slept soundly last night in his cell in "condemned row."

HOPPE PLEADS GUILTY; ASKS SANITY PROBE

Defense Counsel Says Other Murders May Be Cleared

TOLEDO, O., July 6.—Charles (Stanley) Hoppe, 26, today pleaded guilty to first degree murder in connection with the death of seven-year-old Dorothy Sielagowski, soon after court opened here today to resume the seventh day of the murder trial.

Defense witnesses were to have been heard for the first time this morning, but instead, Hoppe's attorney, Larry Bevan, entered a plea of guilty for his client, and asked for an insanity hearing. Judge Milroy is considering the application.

Hoppe was placed on trial here on June 25, in common pleas court, under an indictment of first degree murder returned by the grand jury which examined evidence presented by County Prosecutor Leroy W. Hunt to the effect that the accused man had stolen the little girl, cousin of his wife, from her bed, criminally assaulted and then strangled her, on the morning of May 29, last.

Bevan arose from his seat at the defense table, soon after court convened, and entered Hoppe's plea, as follows:

"Your honor, I wish to enter a plea of guilty to first degree murder for my defendant." Then, turning to Hoppe, Bevan said: "Do you realize, Hoppe, that in changing your plea to guilty you are throwing yourself upon the mercy of the court and that it may mean your being sentenced to the electric chair?" Hoppe weakly nodded assent.

After making the plea of guilty, Bevan moved the court permit an examination into Hoppe's sanity. The agreement to enter the guilty plea was made July 4, in a conference attended by Hoppe, his wife, and defense attorneys.

Bevan said today that following the conference with Hoppe he believed it would be possible to solve many equally important murders, similar to that of the Sielagowski girl, in and around Toledo in the last few years and that the solution of these would strengthen his claim that Hoppe was insane.

Bevan appeared before Judge Milroy here yesterday and admitted that his plea of sickness in order to obtain a continuance of the trial made yesterday morning was a "hoax."

"Give me but a few hours more," the attorney requested of the court, "and I think I can end this case." Bevan then outlined all of his findings with regard to Hoppe.

At the conclusion of Bevan's argument, Judge Milroy observed that he considered the case "too big for any one man to handle," and summoned Common Pleas Judge James Martin, and Judge James Austin, also of common pleas court, branch of domestic relations to confer with him regarding the case.

SMUGGLING UNDER FIRE

Rail Officials Called To Conference To Halt Canadian Bootlegging.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—Officials of railroads operating between United States and Canada have been called for a conference on July 18 with Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Seymour Lowman for a checkup on steps to prevent smuggling between the two countries.

In announcing the conference today Lowman explained that about a month ago, the entire situation had been laid before the rail executives and customs officers at Buffalo, where an agreement was reached to take drastic action against smugglers.

Because of the dictate of the treasury department for additional regulatory activities in connection with freight and express traffic, it was decided at that time to give the railroads an opportunity to work out an anti-smuggling campaign.

Advices to Lowman indicate that such a plan has been devised by the railroad people and that it will be presented at the conference. It is probable that a group of Canadian and American customs officials will sit in.

Included in the list of railroads to be presented are the Canadian National, Canadian Pacific, Pere Marquette, New York Central and Delaware and Hudson.

MEETS AIR DEATH

Crossing from London, England, to Brussels, Belgium, by airplane, Captain Alfred Loewenstein, Belgian financier, above, stepped through the wrong door in the side of the plane to plunge to his death in the English Channel. Loewenstein, reported third richest man in the world, visited the U. S. in the spring, buying a plane for touring the country, and bringing his personal pilot on the trip.

MOTOR CRASH FATAL TO YOUNG RASKOB; WAS YALE STUDENT

Son Of Dupont And General Motors Man Is Victim

CENTREVILLE, Md., July 6.—Funeral services for William F. Raskob, 19 year old son of John F. Raskob, vice president of the Dupont Company, of Wilmington, Del., killed in an automobile accident near here late yesterday, will be held here tomorrow afternoon. The body will be taken to Wilmington, and interment will be at the Cathedral Cemetery in that city.

Young Raskob, a student at Yale University, was driving his automobile from Wilmington to the Raskob summer home near Centreville, when the machine left the road in an attempt to get back on the concrete, it was said, the youth lost control and the high powered car catapulted over an embankment. It turned over twice and righted itself, but young Raskob was thrown through the windshield.

When aid reached him it was found his head crushed. Doctors W. H. Fisher and H. F. McCaskey, of Centreville, were summoned and pronounced the youth dead. He probably had been killed instantly, it was said.

The body was ordered taken to an undertaking establishment, and a coroner's inquest brought forth a verdict of accidental death.

The elder Raskob, who had just returned from the Houston convention, where he had gone with a party including members of Gov. Al Smith's family, was in New York when news of the death of his son reached him. He reached Centreville last night. Other members of the Raskob family also are at the summer home.

Besides being an official of the Dupont Company Raskob is chairman of the finance committee of the General Motors Corporation.

HEADS STANDARD

CLEVELAND, July 6.—A. J. Mills, head of the Ohio Standard Oil Co.'s sales department for five years and more recently a vice president, has been elected president of the company succeeding W. H. Foster, resigned, the board of directors announced today.

Foster served with the company fifty-one years.

BREAK RECORDS FOR DISTANCE IN ROME-BRAZILIAN FLIGHT

Made Night Landing After 4,600 Mile Ocean Trip

RIO DE JANEIRO, July 6.—After being reported "lost" for hours, word was received here today that the record breaking Italian aviators, Capt. Arturo Ferrarin and Major Carlo Del Prete landed at Touro, on the Brazilian coast, near Capao Roque, at 10:10 o'clock last night, (Brazilian time). Governor Laramine, of the state of Rio Grande Del Norte, telegraphed that the flyers were safe and had spent the night at Touro.

Owing to the inability of radio stations to get in touch with the airmen, it had been assumed at first that they spent hours flying over the coast in storm and fog before landing.

Ferrarin and Del Prete in completing their 4,600 mile flight from Rome, set an aviation distance record. After a rest they hopped off again for Rio De Janeiro, about 1,200 miles distant, allowing for coast line detours.

Radio stations on the northeastern coast tried to get in touch with the airmen, but failed. Finally word came through from Touro that the Italian plane "had been picked up." This left it in doubt as to whether radio communication with the flyers had been re-established or whether the plane had come down.

Following the long hours of suspense there was much rejoicing here over the news that the daring airmen had at last been found.

After hopping off at Genipabu Beach, ten miles north of Natal last night the aviators did not fly at once in the direction of Rio. In fact, there was some doubt as to their intentions. The Italians said they were going to look for a better landing field and turned northward.

Governor Laramine, who was attempting to keep in touch with the course of the flight, sent word to Rio at 3:50 a. m. (Brazilian time) that he had not received any word from the Italian plane since it hopped off at Genipabu Beach.

SMITH IS PLANNING NOTIFICATION FOR LATER THIS MONTH

Governor Favoring Early Date For Ceremony.

ALBANY, July 6.—Back at the executive mansion today after a series of conferences in New York, Governor Al Smith was trying to catch up on some lost time and make plans for his notification ceremony.

Final details for the notification are expected to be mapped out here tomorrow at a conference between the governor and Senator Key Pittman of Nevada, who will preside at the ceremony.

"I just wanted to see Senator Pittman and talk things over with him," the governor said in announcing that Pittman would be here tomorrow.

The governor is understood to have expressed a desire to some of the Democratic leaders that the notification ceremony be held as speedily as possible, and for that reason it is expected to take place the latter part of this month. The date probably will not be announced until after the national committee meeting in New York next Wednesday.

Tentative plans, which are said to have the approval of the governor are carried out, the ceremony will take place on the steps of the capitol.

SPHINX OF CHICAGO TRADE BOARD DIES

CHICAGO, July 6.—Adolph J. Lichstein, one of the picturesque characters of the Chicago Board of Trade, millionaire, "man of mystery" and known as the "Sphinx" on the Board, died here today following a paralytic stroke two weeks ago.

Lichstein was generally credited with having cornered the wheat market in 1911 from which he is said to have derived a large fortune. He was one of the largest grain operators.

WRECK ON PENNSY

NEVADA, O., July 6.—Train service on the main line of the Pennsylvania Railroad in Wyandot County was disrupted today as a result of a wreck near here when nineteen cars of a freight train left the rails, tearing up both tracks and disrupting communication.

T. R.'S OTHER HALF

Mrs. Roosevelt Seen As Balance Wheel For Teddy Who Lacked Sense Of Humor.

Theodore Roosevelt and Inset, Mrs. Edith Kermit Roosevelt

(This is the fourth of a series of presidential personalities by Ida McGlone Gibson, nationally-known feature writer.)

By IDA M'GLONE GIBSON
Specially Written for Central Press and The Gazette

President Roosevelt and Judge Ben Lindsay, of the Denver juvenile court, were very great friends, and when, after the row with William Howard Taft, Roosevelt broke with the Republicans and formed the "Bull Moose" party, the physically small judge, with the big courage, was one of his staunchest adherents.

Contrary to her usual custom, Mrs. Roosevelt came to Chicago with "T. R." as he was then beginning to be called, for the Moose convention. During her stay, she gave a tea to the newspaper women at her rooms in the Congress hotel.

T. R.'s Humor

Roosevelt had very little sense of humor. The subtleties of sarcasm were not for him, and to make him enjoy a good laugh, one had to strike out with a sledge hammer blow.

On the contrary, Mrs. Roosevelt, like all sensitive women, was one of the wittiest persons I ever have met. Since she had asked me to come to her rooms a little early, and introduce the newspaper girls to her, I arrived a half hour before the tea was scheduled.

Suddenly we heard a big resounding laugh in the hallway, and the colonel burst into the room—so full of what he was going to say that he did not notice that anyone else was there.

"Edith, Edith," he called, before he had fairly opened the door, "do you know what they are calling our dear Ben Lindsay?"

Mrs. Roosevelt said nothing, but her face mirrored her interest. Again his big laugh filled the room. When he recovered himself somewhat, he said: "They are calling him the 'Bull Moose'."

Mrs. Roosevelt looked thoroughly worried. "Aren't you afraid if the judge hears that it will distress him?" she inquired, softly.

"I never thought of that," answered her husband, looking as abashed as a boy caught with a much-prized pot of jam in his hands.

Then he saw me and sobered instantly. Later, at the tea, when the other newspaper women arrived, he gave me the impression that he had on his company manners.

Many times afterwards I was made aware that Theodore Roosevelt's wife, in her unassuming way, was his great balance wheel.

SWIMMER IS SHOT

COLUMBUS, O., July 6.—William Francis, 14, was in Grant hospital here today where surgeons probed for a bullet and removed it from his groin and Robert Carpenter, 17, was being held in the county jail pending investigation of the shooting of Francis who was said to have received his wound when Carpenter, standing on the bank of Spring Lake near here with a .22 calibre rifle, attempted to see how near he could come to grazing swimmers in the lake without actually hitting them.

Carpenter denied the shooting, claiming mistaken identity.

BOOKS ON VACATION PREVENT DULL DAYS LIBRARIAN STATES

"More and more summer vacationists demand books, and yet many vacations are spent far from any source of supply. Those of you who go camping for instance, know that there are times when fishing, canoeing and other sports fall in their appeal and a good book would make all the difference," Miss Mildred Sandoe, county librarian says.

"And what is a sea trip without a book?"

"The solution?"

"Your library."

"Vacationists are privileged characters. According to library rules vacationists may take with them six books to be kept for four weeks if so desired. Furthermore, if you are going away and do not care to carry the books, your address plus postage will insure a supply of books being sent to you by mail. These are changeable at any time as any books you like can be sent to you upon your returning the original set. "Don't forget your library will do its best to make your vacation a happy one. All it needs is your address."

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

A SURE PROPHECY—Whoso curseth his father or his mother, his lamp shall be put out in obscure darkness. Prov. 20:20.

STRUGGLE FOR NOTORIETY

Unfortunately, most of us have never had the pleasure of personal acquaintance with a marathon dancer, a flagpole sitter, a champion pie-eater, or a long-distance piano player. It is hard to believe, but evidently these folk have something to recommend them. They can hardly be as foolish as they look and act.

Probably a couple can dance three hundred hours and afterwards marry and rear children, go to the movies, grow old, and die respectably.

But, just the same, few of us can appreciate the psychology of the marathon dancers. We cannot conceive an idea that will explain why any person above the mentality of a cricket will waddle around on a floor night and day for a week or so, while disgusted spectators pay admission to see the depressing sight.

Humans, of course, have a native urge to exhibit themselves. Savages stick sharpened bones through their noses so that people may look at them and say, "What a fright Mrs. Glubglub looks, with that old-fashioned bone through her nose!"

Primitive people love to make holy shows of themselves. The more enterprising will cripple themselves in some frightful manner, so that persons going along the road will turn away in disgust at sight of them. These foolish savages think it is better to be noticed with disgust than not to be noticed at all.

Perhaps you have known very young children who have made themselves unsightly in order to attract attention. Daubed their faces with ink, or even bumped their heads against a wall, so that people might laugh at them or pity them. Anything rather than obscurity.

This probably comes the nearest to explaining the marathon dancers of any example that might be mentioned. But one must be very primitive and childish indeed to yearn for such notoriety as these people get through torturing themselves into total physical exhaustion.

Undoubtedly these misguided persons delight in the staring of the crowds and in the knowledge that their names are in the papers. But what a price to pay for such tarnished glory!

KELLOGG'S PEACE PROPOSAL

The beginning made by the United States in recording the peace proposal of Secretary Kellogg should win the approval of the people of the country.

Other nations have expressed sympathy with the efforts of the United States Government, recently begun by Secretary of State Kellogg, to further the idea of world peace by the formal renunciation of war 'as an instrument of policy.' This statement puts the Government of the United States on record. It states the aims of this country and to people of the world generally.

A common ground on which nations can meet apparently has been found by Secretary Kellogg even though some observers condemn his resolution as being a meaningless gesture. It is meaningless only if no one gives it meaning. But if the great nations get together and make it evident that they are opposed to war as a national policy, they will have established a precedent which will help them in going still further in their effort to outlaw war.

MR. GOODMAN

The case of "Mr. John Goodman" was debated at the editors' convention in Washington recently. Mr. Goodman is the name given to a supposedly eminent and respectable citizen who is caught in a raid on a disreputable roadhouse or is picked up in some equally unfortunate circumstances. Mr. Goodman has a wife and family. Shall the editor print the story of the escapade or shall he save Mr. Goodman's reputation?

There are arguments on both sides. Printing the story is hard on the wife and family but the publicity may save a lot of wives and families of a lot of John Goodmans who may make up their minds to change their ways.

RULES

Beware of adopting somebody else's rule. The thing that may be good for him may not be good for you. The pyramid builders of Egypt lived on onions, garlic, and lentils. Nothing better than vegetables. Some people eat no meat at all and have good health. Others thrive on meat. Find out just who you are and what's what, and have the nerve to depend on your own judgment.

MEN TEACHERS

Figures show that the number of men who teach school is increasing. Statistics for a recent year showed an increase of three per cent in male teachers. It's a good sign. Teaching is both men's work and women's work. Nobody could possibly be too good to teach.

TRUTH MAKES NO HIT

John Todd, an Englishman whose business was to survey buildings thought to be dangerous, has resigned. He served notice on the British public that St. Paul's Cathedral was not what it ought to be. He got so much criticism for telling the truth about buildings that he quit his job.

It's not hard to understand about John Todd. Tell the truth to people and they won't like it. They'll stop their cars and flee far to escape the truth. We care little for hearing it. We want to hear what we want to hear.

DIVINE RIGHT

Disraeli, great prime minister of Britain, said: "The divine right of kings may have been a plea for feeble tyrants, but the divine right of government is the keystone of human progress, and without it governments sink into police, and a nation is degraded into a mob."

The Diary of a New Yorker

By CLARK KINNAIRD

NEW YORK, July 7. — This is the season of the year when the boy and girl hitch-hikers descend upon the city. The college year over, they bum their way here with a few dollars or nothing, trusting to luck to see to it that they have a good time and want for nothing in the biggest city. The boys seek out jobs aboard ship, or hire out as help in resort hotels, or bunk with friends or fraternity brothers. With what they can scrape up by means of appeals to Pa or Ma, or borrowings from trusting or untrusting acquaintances, they have a grand time summering in Manhattan and environs.

Last year, a young friend of mine posted his white flannels and dinner coat to general delivery, New York; and hitch-hiked a thousand miles to his big city. Of the distance he had to walk 40 or 50 miles.

After exhausting all of the week-end and dinner possibilities afforded by his friends, and having made the acquaintances of several companionable young women whom he could take to parties when he was able to crash them, he slept in parks or on beaches, eating in places where it is possible to get a meal for 20 cents, and bathing at municipal bath-houses or bathing beaches. When there was a party to go to, he got his dress clothes from the checkroom in which he kept them, and shaved and adorned himself in one of the booths available for such a purpose in the Grand Central and Pennsylvania stations.

His mornings he spent in the public library devouring the books his curious soul longed for, or in Metropolitan Museum of Art, or wandering in the streets, absorbing the color of the city. Afternoons he joyfully accompanied the expeditions organized by real estate salesmen to sell lots in the far reaches of Long Island, Westchester or New Jersey. This usually meant a free meal, certainly an entertaining ride, and possibly some companionable conversation with a more or less attractive young woman.

New York newspaper offices are being besieged with offers from young men and young women, some with aviation experience to undertake all sorts of adventures in return for financial backing from the newspapers. They want to fly to Russia, to Japan, to Patagonia. Incidentally, New York newspapers refused to sponsor the flight of Amelia Earhart, the Boston girl who was first to hop from North America to England. They were not anxious to pay a woman to try and kill herself. They similarly refused Ruth Elder, Mrs. Frances Grayson and Mabel Boll. However, after Miss Earhart succeeded in getting across, a newspaper paid her for her exclusive story.

Estimating Feminine Character

Every day somebody goes into a big store where he is not known, asks for credit, gets it, and goes out marveling that the thing was so easy.

"For all they know," he thinks, "I might be a dead-beat or a crook. They must lose a lot of money in that way."

The truth is that credit losses in average big stores are comparatively trivial. When a store lets a stranger open a charge account, they know more about him than he suspects.

Credit men in big retail establishments, especially department stores, become especially expert in sizing up feminine human nature, since the majority of shoppers in such stores are women. Many women are pretenders. That is, they pose as "grand dames" when they are not. Rarely does such a woman, when she appears at the credit man's window, succeed in fooling anybody. The expert credit man knows that many well-to-do gentlemen dress plainly and that many poor women dress in the plush-horse type, nevertheless have financial standing; but he also knows that when a coarse-looking woman wears fake jewelry and ultra-fashionable clothes, or other bizarre combinations of cheapness and expensiveness, she will bear the closest investigation. If she appears in a credit man's window, he will ask her to answer a few customary questions. The credit man simply confirms his suspicion that her account is not desirable. Moreover, the credit man is dubious about a woman who is either unduly talkative or needlessly uncommunicative. The woman who talks too much may be trying to hide something under her veil of baloney. And the one who will volunteer nothing at all is at least unfair to the store, for she should appreciate that before extending credit they are entitled to know something about her.

On the other hand, a woman may have little to say owing to a feeling of embarrassment, because she is not accustomed to business dealings. And she may suddenly talk with surprising freedom, due to a sense of relief, as she feels that the question of the credit man's interest in her is over. A good credit man knows this and schemes to place a woman at her ease as quickly as possible.

While a customer seeking to establish credit has no justification for being offended when asked about her financial status, yet the storekeeper credit man knows that it is wise to get his information from a customer's answers to questions without knowing that she is

REDUCTION BATHS

I gave Marcia a list of requirements for her reduction baths, and after she had filled the purchase order, I supervised her first attempt. The list I gave her called first for a large rubber sheet, a large carton of Epsom salts, a few cakes of an excellent reducing soap, two jars of reducing jelly, and a package of dried pine needles and small balsam leaves.

The bath was drawn, and a handful of the pine and balsam herbs tied in a cheesecloth bag and thrown in the water into which a pound of Epsom salts had been dissolved.

The bath was to be kept at an even heat by running a thin stream of hot water into it; on alternate days a regular bath was taken, with reducing soap rubbed all over the body.

Fifteen minutes is usually the longest a novice can stand, the hot Epsom salts bath, although many people find it perfectly comfortable to relax and really enjoy it for half an hour. After the bath, Marcia was wrapped in a sheet and then returned to her room. The rubber sheet was then wrapped all around her shoulders and feet carefully covered, and then a light woolen blanket pulled over that.

Marcia was so earnest in her efforts and so pitifully eager for results that I told her to add a hot water bath at her feet, and to cover herself with another blanket. By the second or third treatment she had formed the habit of going straight to sleep, and so was able to stay wrapped up in this amateur reducing bath for a full hour. The baths must be followed with a lukewarm shower, after which reducing jelly is rubbed well into the fatty parts. You can reduce a pound or more each time by following these directions.

In the beginning I only advised Marcia to take these baths twice a week each, for its isn't good to lose too much weight in a short space of time.

A starch bath, one-half pound of starch dissolved in tepid water, should be taken on the night following the reducing baths; or in other words, every third night.

Don't overdo the hot baths, for they can be weakening despite the invigorating action of the pine and balsam. If you are too persistent in your efforts to obtain results.

I cautioned Marcia, too, upon the need of rubbing a little pasteurized cream into face and hands after the long reducing baths.

The steam is bound to reach the facial tissues and its drying effect must be thoroughly counteracted by the use of lubricating creams.

Following the bath instructions, and realizing that Marcia's figure was now beginning to tone down noticeably, I felt it high time to take her complexion in hand and restore to it some of the freshness and youth which she had so thoughtlessly and needlessly sacrificed.

Artificial Respiration

Do you know how to revive a drowning person, or one suffering from electric shock or gas poisoning, or from other accidents which suspend the breathing? You should. Even children should know this first aid.

Today I am going to give you what is considered the best method of giving artificial respiration. Don't depend upon your memory without practicing it. Practice it after reading this, and save this article so you can practice it again. It will be time well spent. You can never tell when you might be able to save a life, for in such accidents as I have mentioned, every moment of delay is serious, and while waiting for a doctor or some one who knows the method, the victim may die.

Prone Pressure Method of Resuscitation

1.—Quickly examine the mouth and remove anything that is removable; false teeth, tobacco, chewing gum, etc.

2.—Lay the patient on his stomach with both his arms extended over his head. Turn his face to one side so that his nose and mouth are free for breathing.

3.—Kneel astride the patient over his hips.

4.—Place the palms of your hands on the small of his back so that the tips of your fingers are just out of sight around his side, with the little finger just touching the last rib. Hold your arms tight.

5.—Swing the weight of your body forward on the patient, keeping your arms stiff while you count one, two — about the time of a second a count.

6.—While counting three, return to the upright position, removing your weight and pressure from the patient, but do not remove your hands. Rest long enough to count—four, five.

Repeat these procedures, the swinging back and forward, 12 to 15 times a minute, making a complete respiration in four to five seconds. You can time this by your own breathing. While you are going forward counting one, two, breathe in. While you are coming back, count three, four, five, and breathe out. (In any form of artificial respiration, a point to remember is to make the movements to restore the breathing no more rapidly than the normal breathing, which is from 12 to 15 times a minute. In the zeal to revive, there may be the impulse to make the movements too rapidly.)

As soon as you begin the artificial respiration, and while you are doing it, if others are present, let them loosen any tight clothing about the patient's neck, chest or waist, and then keep the patient warm by covering his limbs with blankets or by rubbing them.

Keep up the artificial respiration without interruption until the patient begins to breathe, or until the physician states that vigor mortis (stiffening of the body) has set in, which will denote death. Do not give up hope until this stiffening does take place. People have been resuscitated after being worked on for eight or nine hours, and even longer. The patient should be watched very carefully, after breathing begins, and if it stops, the resuscitation should be again repeated.

Today's Recipes

Baked Stuffed Chops — Fry a tablespoon each of minced onion, celery and green pepper in butter until tender. Soak half a cup of bread-crumbs in one cup of milk. Add the vegetables, salt, pepper, one-half teaspoonful of thyme and one egg. Brown lamb or pork chops quickly on both sides in a hot pan. Place in a baking pan with half a cup of water. Put a mound of stuffing on each chop and place half a teaspoonful of drippings on each mound. Bake in the oven for thirty minutes and serve.

Fruit salad — On a bed of lettuce place a slice of pineapple, then a slice of orange. Garnish with sliced bananas and strawberries and top with whipped cream. This may be varied according to the fruits that are ripe in your vicinity when you use the recipe.

SUGGESTIONS

Simple Rose Jar
Dry rose petals and orange skins. To one cup of dried petals add the skin of half an orange broken in tiny bits, one teaspoon each salt, cinnamon and whole cloves.

Your assistant, if you have one, may do as follows:

1.—Place a cloth saturated with ammonia or smelling salts near the patient's nose, first trying it out on himself to determine the distance at which it will not strangle.

2.—Hit the patient's shoe heels a few times with a stick and repeat this operation every five minutes until breathing commences.

3.—Keep the patient warm.

Do not move the patient until breathing normally without assistance. If absolutely necessary to move him, he should be placed on a hard surface, such as a door or a floor of a conveyance. But you must not stop or interrupt the resuscitation.

This Prone Pressure method is much superior to the one called the Sylvester method, in which the patient is placed on his back and his arms swung alternately above his head and down across his chest, because this method quickly turns the person applying it and is also unsuccessful in filling the patient's lungs with air.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, July 7.—Next is a genius with a wonderful gift of words and, of course, the foundation of learning to back it up. But that isn't all. There are others as eloquent and as well informed, but they haven't the faculty for telling it to the radio, and those who do have the faculty haven't the thoughts to express at first hand.

Bowers would be lost at the head of a governmental department. But what else is there to do with him? There's no portfolio for the dissemination of public information by wireless. Ever if there were, Claude isn't adapted to the mere reading off of mimeographed stuff. He manufactures his own.

Claude is more than an orator. He's an orator up-to-date. He has the trick of putting his ideas across the microphone. It's a new stunt.

Old timers tore around on the platform. It won't do now. The speech-maker must keep his lips glued to a mechanical device. It sucks the life out of the sort of spell-binding we used to know. The modern adept at it must be a professional broadcaster, and that's what Bowers is to a "T."

Besides, he has the goods. Broadcasting with him is only a means to an end. He is a Patrick Henry up-to-date, equipped to thrill a nation where Pat stirred only a roomful.

Just what his party'll do with Claude, it's difficult to say. In the olden days he'd been rewarded with the postmaster generalship or some such post as that. It doesn't fit his peculiar type of genius, which is altogether a new thing. Basically, Claude

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

Chasing the Boys

Girls, take it from me, it never does any good to run after the boys. You merely annoy them and their families and make yourself ridiculous and cheap. It is much wiser to "never tell your love," but let concealment, like a worm in the blood, feed on your damask cheek," as Bill Shakespeare says. You will then have the satisfaction of knowing you look pale and interesting and a fit object for pity, and pity is, you know, akin to love. The bold hussies merely terrify and disgust men, even when they seem to win them. If you ever heard the way men talk about them you would be sure of it. Let the men do the running, and they will run after, instead of away from you.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am a young girl of 16. I have several times been out with a young man four years my senior. Although I do not go with him steady, I would like to very much. It seems as if the first time I met him I loved him. One of my best girl friends has been going to get him, but when he asks her for a date she refuses. What should I do? Do you think I should mention it to him about going steady? It seems that I lose all my life when I am away from him. I just hope and pray for the next time to come, when I can be with him. Mrs. Lee, what should I do?"

If he wants to go with you "steady," dear, he will ask you. If you say anything it might only embarrass him, so just be as nice to him as you can without being mushy, and let things take their course.

"Anxious Louise's" letter should have been answered before. The same answer applies to you as to Brownie. Let the boys do the asking.

Lonesome and Sorry says she wrote me some time ago and I did not answer. She thinks maybe I thought she was insincere, but she assures me she is not. This is her problem.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: Two years ago I met a boy with whom I fell in love. I see him sometimes now, and he only speaks, but never stops to talk. When I first met him he loved me, but I was not nice to him. Sometimes I think he still loves me, as he always watches me a great deal and likes to flirt with other girls when I am near. He only asks me for one dance when I go to a party. What can I do to get him to like me? Should I tell him just how I feel toward him, or should I go in for a good time and not let on I see him?"

LONESOME AND SORRY.

Unless you have more grounds for thinking he is still interested in you than you have at present do not tell him how you feel. It might be very embarrassing for you both. Be as jolly and as friendly as you can when you dance together, and go ahead and have good times with others as well. If you are consistently friendly and nice to him he will, if he still cares, come back to you.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I'm a girl 16 and was in love with a fellow 24. A few weeks ago he broke up with me and we have had no trouble. I don't know why he left me. What would you advise me to do?"

"BLUE EYED KATE"

Try to forget him, Kate, and cultivate other friends.

A BALL OF FEATHERS

As soon as she could catch her breath, for Mrs. Bobolink had started off on her story telling in a real hurry, she continued: "When we had reached one of the very highest branches we alighted to look about us, but before I had a chance to see a thing, I heard Bob give a queer frightened sort of chirp. I flitted about as quick as the dart of a humming bird's tail, and what do you think I saw?"

"Ooh! We can't guess. Tell us quickly," cried Peter as Sonny Bunny waved his tiny rabbit's paws excitedly.

"There right beside husband was something that looked like a great ball of loose feathers. A bird surely—that else would have such a fluffy coat—but where in the world was the queer creature's head? Could it have lost it? What dreadful thing had happened and who had done it? Bob and I stared at the poor thing wondering if it was safe for us to stay in that tree top. Something terrible might befall us! But as we watched the thing stirred. Slowly from under its wings where it had tucked it, appeared a coal black head and a huge beak, that must have been at least eight Bobolink beaks long and it was a bright reddish yellow. Just the color of the sun on a hot afternoon."

"That wasn't all! With a little snap, just as if it had been on springs, a long tail popped into place from where the fellow had kept it hidden, and doubled over his back. What an eye the creature had, partly green and partly yellow. When he rolled it at us I could feel all the pinfeathers on my body rising. But the odd fellow seemed peaceable enough. After one look not a bit of attention did he pay to us, but set himself to combing out his gay plumage with his long beak.

At last Bob, deciding that the fellow meant no harm, made up his mind to speak.

"Good morning, kind sir," chirped my husband, "would you mind showing us the way?"

"'Ceh! Ceh! Ceh! The strange bird chuckled hoarsely. 'That's a good one. How can I show you the way when I don't know where you are going?' The fellow winked his eye at me and went on combing his feathers, as uninterested in our business as you could well imagine. But I don't know that we could blame him. After all we had come upon him very suddenly and Bob hadn't introduced himself before he popped his question."

Creamed Comments On S.S. Lesson

Saul, a leader in the persecution of Christians was proceeding to end his destructive program by flogging to death the Christians in Damascus forty miles from Jerusalem; while making this long journey, the quiet of the way with its stirring of a conscience within made possible a new experience portrayed in this lesson.

Vs. 6, 7. "As I drew nigh unto Damascus, about noon, suddenly here shone from heaven a great light round about me. And I fell to the ground and heard a voice saying unto me, 'Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me?' One that has been a great sinner is likely to have a spectacular conversion—a great sinner will find a great salvation with likely demonstrations. The voice of God first called attention to his sin—the persecution of his followers which was his persecution.

V. 8. "And I answered, who art Thou, Lord? And he said unto me, I am Jesus of Nazareth whom Thou persecutest." The one who really seeks to know the Lord will find Him.

V. 10. "And I said, what shall I do, Lord? And the Lord said unto me, arise and go into Damascus; and there it shall be told thee of all things which are appointed thee to do." Paul's restless energies were being reversed and were eager to flow in the channel of service for Jesus; not another word about persecution, but words of mercy giving light for the next step to be taken.

V. 11. "And when I could not see for the glory of the light, being led by the hand of them that were with me, I came unto Damascus." Paul immediately obeyed his newly found Lord, threw his will into the current of his Master's will and turned his faith into faithfulness. There was much that he did not know; he could not see, he was being led by the hand like a child in the dark; but one thing he did know—Jesus was his Lord forever.

Vs. 12, 13. "And one Ananias, a devout man came unto me and said Brother Saul, receive thy sight. And in that very hour I looked up on him." The work of God must be done through human agencies co-operating with the Lord, so Ananias was called to represent God in doing the necessary personal work. Personal evangelism is the Bible way.

V. 14. "And he said, the God of our fathers has appointed thee to know His will, and to see the Righteous One, and to hear a voice from his mouth." To know God's will is an essential appointment for every man; it takes an effort on the part of man to know God's will. In that effort divine encouragement is given as one sees and hears the Lord.

V. 16. "And why tarriest thou? Arise and be baptized, and wash away thy sins, calling on the name of the Lord." Full obedience was to be seen in moving on as directed by God and in the rite of baptism, the seal of his conversion.

Discussion on Questions on S.S. Lesson

1. What does the term, "conversion" mean?
2. What are the steps that lead to conversion?
3. How does the Lord lead out of uncertainty into clear convictions?
4. What are some of the things we are "appointed" to do in the world?
5. What are the different types of conversion in experiences as taught in the Bible?
6. Why were there special accompaniments in Paul's conversion?

Clericus says, "Each of us may have a vision of Christ which is just as real, just as powerful, just as beautiful and blessed as that which Saul saw on the Damascus road. There may not accompany it such startling scenes, yet we may be as certain of having seen Him and determine to know Him and follow Him."

Lesson Prayer, "O Lord, how we have persecuted Thee, unawares! How generously Thou hast stood in the way we have proceeded, ready to reveal Thyself at every possible occasion! We praise Thee for speaking to us and furnishing us the needed light that makes clear the right way; help us to walk in the way that leads to God all the days of our life."

BOOK REVIEW

"Current Thinking" by Smith, The University of Chicago Press, presents the modern forms of Christian belief and points out their relation to the whole progress of Christian thinking.

"Making the House a Home" by Guest, The Reilly and Lee Co. Chicago, is a portrayal of the building of a home suggestive of help for any home builders.

Church Forum
1. WHAT ARE THE ADVANTAGES OF THE LECTURE METHOD IN TEACHING A SUNDAY SCHOOL CLASS?
The lecture method is especially adapted to teaching of adult Bible classes. More can be reached by this teaching method; more truth can be presented than is possible by other methods in a short space of time; few teachers can ask questions and lead worthwhile discussions properly; the lecture method calls out the best in the teacher and often he is developed into a commanding speaker; the lecture method makes it easy for the timid to attend the class sessions and at the same time he is helped; it allows the building up of large classes which may be a great inspiration; the large Bible classes fostered and maintained by successful teachers with the lecture method often develop into mighty forces in social, civic, reform and religious movements.

2. WHAT ARE SOME OF THE DISADVANTAGES OF THE LECTURE METHOD?
This method is not so feasible for small classes of adults and is not pedagogical for classes of children and young people; it encourages laziness on the part of the pupils who do not need to study, as the teacher does all the studying; the method may smother that self expression of the class which makes for the moral life and strength of the class; there is a great danger that the members of a class taught by the lecture method feel that since the preaching service, there is no need to attend the public service of worship; there is a tendency to build the class around the teacher who is a great success with this method and when the teacher goes, the class goes.

APPRECIATION VERSUS CRITICISM

A mother recently called on her pastor; she had a broken heart, giving as her reason that she had been justly rebuked by her little girl.

"You know," she said to her pastor, "how often she says and does things that irritate me and how often I have to rebuke her, and I have not been slow in my criticisms, but I noticed that today she had not done a thing to irritate me."

When I tucked her in bed and gave her a goodnight kiss and had started downstairs, I was surprised to hear her sobbing. Turning back, I found her little head buried in the pillow and her body shaking with crying. When I asked her why she cried, she answered between her sobs, 'Haven't I been a good girl today?'"

"That question," said the mother, "went through my heart like a knife. I had been quick enough to correct her when she had done the thing that was wrong, but when all day long she had tried to conduct herself so that she would not do a thing that irritated me, I had put her to bed without speaking a word of appreciation."

Many others besides that mother get far behind in their words of kindness. The child is even more sensitive than the adult; many a child's character is made or unmade by attention and appreciation or by ignoring and criticisms.—D. Carl Yoder.

World Religious News

The Community Church idea is growing. In 1922 there were 831 community churches, in 1927 there were 1296. Of this number 441 are denominational, 378 undenominational and 436 federated.

It is predicted that between three and four thousand delegates from the southern states will attend the Baptist World Congress this summer at Toronto and about three thousand from the northern section. The tercentenary of John Bunyan will be observed.

At the end of the first century there were five million Christians at the end of the tenth century 10,000,000, at the end of the fifteenth century, 100,000,000 and at the end of the nineteenth century 500,000,000. There are now about 600,000,000 Christians in the world.

Mr. Arthur Gook, leader of the Friends Mission in Iceland itineraries among the remote farms of the island, preaching the gospel. He has recently been able to construct a radio center with masts 114 feet high at the top of a steep hill. Three or four receiving stations have already been provided for by donors. This will present the gospel each week to many who otherwise have no opportunity of hearing it.

The Church Invites You

THE VALUE OF RELIGIOUS MOTIVES

Roger Babson says, "The prosperity of our country depends upon the motives and purposes of our people. These motives and purposes are directed only in the right course through religion. In spite of their imperfections, this is why I believe in our churches, and why I am a great optimist on their future."

The need of the hour is not more factories or materials, not more railroads or steamships, not more armies or navies, but rather more education based on the plain teachings of Jesus.

We as men and women are given capacities to learn with possibilities of possessing right motives and purposes. Why not accept the invitation and COME TO CHURCH NEXT SUNDAY?—D. Carl Yoder.

PLEASE!

Although repeatedly urged to bring their church notices in on time, ministers continue to be tardy in this matter. THE GAZETTE prints these notices as a favor to the ministers and as a convenience to their parishioners. The only condition imposed is that the notices be in THE GAZETTE office not later than 5 p. m. Thursday of each week. This week there were only two or three notices in before 5 p. m. Thursday and by 10 Friday morning half of the notices had not arrived. The situation frequently results in delay and confusion in the composing room. Unless this condition is remedied it will be necessary to leave out all notices not received within the proper time.

ANOTHER MARATHON DANCE IS HALTED

PITTSBURGH, July 6.—"The world's championship dance-to-a-finish" marathon which has been going on for more than three weeks at Duquesne Gardens here, came to an abrupt close in its 53rd hour early today by order of the law, and seven couples are wearing the crown of the world's championship.

The marathon came to a close following an announcement made by Dr. D. E. Sable, chief surgeon of the department of public safety dance upon the dancers since they started their harrowing grind, that he would not be responsible for the condition of the marathoners after 2 a. m. today. Each of the contestants, according to Dr. Sable, was in excellent physical condition at the close of the affair.

The three prizes which totalled $3,500 were to be divided between the fourteen contestants. This averages $25 for each dancer or a little less than 61 cents per hour for their 533 hours grind.

BUILDING WRECKED

ST. LOUIS, July 5.—A terrific explosion, heard about the noise of a heavy electrical storm here this morning, destroyed a two-story building occupied by six stores on the lower floor and rooms on the second. Damage was estimated at about $9,000. Police were without a clue, other than several bottles containing a liquid found scattered throughout the building.

Girl Offers Her Body To Find Radium Cure

But Mme. Curie, Noted French Scientist, Says There Is No Hope

By GRAHAM STEWART
International Illustrated News Staff Correspondent

WHEN pretty Katherine Schaub, of No. 123 South Seventh Street, Newark, N. J., offered her living body to scientists in the hope of discovering a cure for the dread radium poisoning, she pre-empted a niche in the medical fraternity's hall of fame especially reserved for those who give their lives in humanity's cause.

One of five young women who are slowly disintegrating from the radium poisoning, Miss Schaub had read the appeal of Dr. Alexander O. Gettler, noted toxicologist, for one of these "living dead" to allow certain experiments to be made while she was yet alive. Only thus was there a chance that other sufferers might be saved.

So Miss Schaub wrote: "My only request is that I be permitted to live out in the sunshine during the experiments. Hospitals are so depressing; there is so much suggestion of sickness and death. Of course, I should want the assurance of physicians that the routine would be conducted in such fashion as not unnecessarily to cut short my life. And if exigencies of the case will admit I should like to visit the famous shrine of St. Anne's in Quebec before I die."

But the sublime courage which prompted Miss Schaub's proffer will be its own reward, for Mme. Curie, noted French scientist, who, with her husband, Pierre, discovered radium in the uranium mineral pitchblende in 1898, has stated that there is no cure for one who has taken the poison into his system. There can be only one result—a lingering, disintegrating death.

MME. CURIE

The girl who offers her own life in order that other sufferers may have a chance for theirs, was an instructress in a radium dial-painting plant in New Jersey. There the girls were told to "point" their brushes with their lips in order to save the precious radium. Little by little they took in the deadly poison, which manifested itself, months later, in some cases years, later. Now the five girls with most advanced cases of poisoning are seeking to recover $1,250,000 damages, although it is admitted that the statute of limitation has expired.

The cases are set for trial the latter part of June.

ONE WIFE DIVORCED WHILE ANOTHER IS PLAINTIFF IN SUIT

Elsie Irene Mayo has filed suit for divorce from Charles Mayo in Common Pleas Court, alleging willful absence from home for more than three years.

The plaintiff also charges gross neglect of duty, claiming she has been forced to support herself and their two children, Mary Elizabeth, 8, and Robert, 5.

They were married at Dayton, July 22, 1918.

GIVEN DIVORCE

Floyd Raymond Butts has been awarded a divorce from May Oakley Butts in Common Pleas Court on grounds of gross neglect of duty. They were married May 27, 1922. ## RESTLESS LOVE

© By Samuel Merwin 1928
RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

READ THIS FIRST:

Ackland Center, a little old town in New England, is proud of its beauty and traditions. But the modern world crowds in on its peace and quiet. Finally a notorious roadhouse, Jazzland, is opened by a gang of bootleggers. Liquor flows, girls of the town are lured there. The editor of the "Weekly Age" is murdered for his editorial attacks. His brother, Homer Pew, takes up the fight. Homer is joined by Stella Bagot, one of the home-town girls, who has made good as a writer in New York. Stella comes to write a story, and remains to fight Jazzland. Homer is beaten up in a mysterious midnight attack. Stella takes charge of the paper and writes sizzling editorials. She also tries to trace a telephone call, believing it to come from the murderers. Stella finds her little sister, Martha, has been out on a lark to Jazzland, and has been drinking. She gives her lecture and Martha complains that she is kept at home while Stella has been allowed to go to college and later take up her own life in New York. Stella retires to her room, and leaves a note pinned on her door telling her mother to awaken her early the next morning.

Stella has made an appointment to phone Ernie Hallam, a New York admirer, who is staying in Boston.

Ernie complains that Stella has forgotten him, but she makes a date to meet him in a little town nearby that night at six-thirty. Ernie is very much in love with Stella.

Stella finds out Joe Harmer, Ackland's leading citizen and political boss, has had a hand in leasing Jazzland to the gang.

Stella convinces Homer to keep quiet about Joe Harmer until they can get more evidence.

Stella tells Homer about her sister Martha's escapades. Stella is beginning to fall in love with Homer, the fighting young editor.

Homer is notified that the bank, of which Joe Harmer is the head, has called his loans.

Stella and Ernie visit Jazzland, and to get evidence Stella persuades Ernie to buy a bottle of liquor.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXVI

Shortly after Ernie returned and laid on the table a flat parcel wrapped in a bit of newspaper. "Four dollars, please," he said.

Stella peeped within the paper. "It's a pint of Scotch, Ernie. My word, but they charge enough!"

The thought came that he despised her small evasions. Probably he'd talk out before long. He'd never before been slow about expressing his thoughts. Was he waiting for her? She couldn't speak to the point. Certainly not until that pounding in her temples eased down. His grim self-control made her feel a fluttering feminine thing. Confusing mental pictures and inert on a sofa while the doctor worked on his head. In that peaceful Colonial room, with the ceiling-high tiers of books and the gilded globe and the dictionary on its wire stand and Kitty Pew standing breathless in a window above and the crushed Aunt Emma twisting her hands.

Suddenly, more than ever like a settled couple, they finished their dinner. Then they smoked. And still the somber eyes were on her. So she suggested dancing again. The evening wore on. The crowd grew. The floor was crowded now. And the liquor was telling. She saw a middle-aged man, with gray strands in his hair, kissing his partner as they danced. The girl couldn't have been twenty. A hum of singing rose from the floor. A girl broke into hysterical laughter, and her escort led her out to the parking area.

They sat again at their table. Stella glanced at her watch. It was a little after ten. His eyes were on her. She stirred uncomfortably. "Ernie," she remarked, struggling to appear casual, "I must be going."

"I've got a lot to do."

"All right," said he, with a snap of decision in his voice. "We'll go."

In that curious, silent manner, they walked out to the car. She carried the whisky bottle, still wrapped in its bit of newspaper. She was aware of couples in the dim cars under the pines; a face here and there, and white arms. She thought of Ham Pew and what he had died for.

They drove out of the yard, still without a word. Hallam turned west.

"This is the wrong turn, Ernie," she said. "We go the other way."

"He deliberately speeded up the car."

She sank back in the seat. Now she sensed, back of the set face, blazing purpose. It was difficult. Doubtless she hadn't been fair with him. She felt tired. And more than a little afraid.

"Ernie is this... fair?"

"Ernie, is this... fair?"

"Fair?" He bent a quick look on her. "It's a great time to be saying that. Are you really laboring under the impression that you've been fair?"

"It's pretty difficult, Ernie, what I've been going through. I'm carrying quite a burden."

This didn't interest him. "I'm afraid I'm pretty tired. Nor this. 'I tell you, I must get home.'"

"Why?"

She had no ready answer for that. The car sped on and on. They were half way to Worcester when he spoke again. "You're not going home tonight, Stella."

She caught her breath. The east-end course, in her bewilderment, would have been to break down and cry; but she wouldn't do that. She didn't know how to meet the strength of the man. But something she must do. Being a woman, she felt back again for evasion.

"But, Ernie, you're... you're unreasonable. I can't just dash off like this. I haven't so much as a hand bag."

"What on earth has that got to do with it? Neither have I."

Worcester lay far behind. The state road wound over and through the hills toward Springfield. Shadowy shapes flashed by in blurred succession. She clung to the side of the car. He was driving pretty fast; fifty and sixty miles an hour.

"Ernie, you're putting me into a situation that's going to be pretty hard to explain."

He didn't reply.

"Won't you tell me what you're planning. After all..."

"Not here," said he. "I don't propose to tell you anything here."

"You're taking a good deal for granted."

"Possibly. But I have no choice."

"No choice?"

"It's a showdown, Stella. The man was more than strong, he was bitter. We're going to talk it out. But not up here."

"You won't tell me where we're going?"

"Certainly. To New York. We'll be there before morning. You can get some sleep. Then we'll talk. Settle it."

"But I can't go to New York."

"Yes you can! Oh, I'm going to treat you well enough, Stella. Better than you deserve. But first I'm going to get you out of that damned Victorian atmosphere. See if I can bring you to your senses. If I can't, all right. We'll just break. But I'm going to find out, once and for all. One thing is certain, if after all, you turn out to be just another of those petty village suppressionists who I can have nothing to say to each other, I had reason to think better of you. You did seem, at least, to have a little courage. A little spirit. I don't care to say any more. We'll do our talking in New York, where there's free air to breathe."

An all-night lunch wagon stood by the road in a Connecticut city. She didn't know what city. She asked, listlessly, if she might have some coffee. They hadn't spoken for an hour or more.

They sat on stools at one end of a long counter. Stella couldn't eat, but sipped her coffee from a thick cup. His eyes were weighing her again. He seemed a stranger.

Her thoughts were becoming more coherent. If the time had arrived for decisive action, she reflected gloomily, she would be equal to it. She must be. There were lives at stake. Her own, anyway. She had been decisive enough at times; when she broke the home ties to go to college, and when she took the plunge into New York. Since then she had permitted her life to be caught in drifts. First in the New York sort of thing. The big, careless city had stirred and possessed her. No doubt about that. Her standards had gradually shifted. She hadn't had much to show in the way of a personal sense of direction. She been just one of those little strutting egos. Homer was right. Her eyes filled.

He asked: "Are you beginning to understand, Stella?"

She didn't reply.

"I mean, why I've done this?"

She lowered her eyes.

"Have you nothing to say?"

"No." She saw the man in the white apron looking at them as he moved about behind the counter, but didn't care whether he heard or not.

"You'll remember that we had something of an understanding, Stella."

She inclined her head.

"Yet you were willing to leave me cooling my heels in a Boston hotel, indefinitely."

GLIMPSES OF OHIO HISTORY

The Villages of The Mequachakes

LONG BEFORE the authorized expeditions of such honored scouts as Christopher Gist, traders of more or less questionable character and purpose had penetrated the country north of the Ohio River to drive shrewd bargains with the Indians. The mighty Shawnees were among the tribes who were driven westward by the progress of the palefaces, and had taken up their abode in the seclusion of the Mad River Valley.

Among their important divisions were the Mequachakes, who established their villages at the headwaters of the Mad River; and these villages became the centers of English trade that naturally followed the trails of these early traders, who were mostly Scotch-Irish.

The Mequachakes Villages were destroyed in the conflicts with U. S. troops in 1791. These same trails have become splendid highways in and out of Bellefontaine and other thriving towns of Logan County, dotted with the friendly Red and White emblem of Smiling Loreco Service.

SCOTCH-IRISH traders, reckless, venturesome, and mayhap of loose morals, ventured into the wilderness at the headwaters of the Mad River and traded with the Mequachakes where now stands the city of Bellefontaine.
